

3. Animals in high hormone states are significantly less risky than when in low hormone states.

