PROGRAM STRUCTURE

WHO IS THIS FOR?

WHO IS THIS ONLINE COURSE FOR?

We've designed this online course to be for anyone who might be interested in making an impact, and specifically developing their career in the "for good" sector. This might be everyone from high school students investigating the possibility of becoming a marine biologist to a retiree who has always wanted to teach abroad.

In the same way as all our programs, our online course is absolutely ideal for those seriously considering pursuing a career in sustainable development. This might be an undergraduate student specialising in biological sciences who is thinking about a career in conservation or a mid-career professional who is thinking about pivoting to a more impact-driven field.

The online coursework applies to a wide range of causes you might like to work towards, much like our in-person programs that are all aligned to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

SOME OF THE AREAS YOU MIGHT LIKE TO SPECIALISE IN INCLUDE:

- adoption of alternative energy solutions that help reduce emissions associated with climate change
- conserving endangered species
- greater gender equality
- healthier communities
- increased access to high quality educational opportunities
- less plastic and other types of environmental pollution
- more sustainable farming, fishing, energy and water use
- reduced financial inequality.

Careers that are supported by our online course include climate research associate, education program specialist, founder of a social enterprise, inclusion and diversity director, marine or wildlife biologist, public health analyst and sustainability manager.
