“There has been an abundant amount of highlights, however, I will never forget the day I helped deliver two babies. It was such an amazing moment that I got to be part of these families’ big day. My internship has helped my majors immensely. I am a double major in nursing and Spanish with a minor in psychology and with my internship, I was able to practice my Spanish in the medical field and put into practice all that I have learned thus far in the nursing program. I was able to work with some of the most amazing doctors who took the time to explain the procedures they were doing or the diagnosis that their patients had. On top of it all, I was learning everything in Spanish, so I was learning medical terminology as well. I’ve had to learn an entirely new system and how to adapt quickly. Those skills, are what most employers are looking for.”
