

CCI PROVIDES ACCREDITATION FOR CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION

Who We Are

Current Concepts Institute (CCI) is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians. This accreditation grants CCI the ability to provide AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™, through Joint Providership, to non-accredited entities hosting non-commercial, physician-based educational events.

What We Provide

Offering CME credit for an educational event indicates that you value evidence-based, non-biased content for physician learners and the standards set by ACCME. The CCI team is here to help you achieve these goals! Through the application process, we will ensure you are on target to address the practice gaps of your learners while remaining in compliance. CCI provides templates and worksheets to guide you from planning to reporting.

Why Work With Us

The CCI professional management team has direct CME experience through the production of 60 Current Concepts in Joint Replacement® (CCJR®) meetings and other global, educational events over the past four decades. CCI has evolved from a non-accredited entity to an ACCME-accredited provider and our experience helps you implement successful CME activities as efficiently as possible. We provide personal, one-on-one interaction through the process with cost-effective pricing for meetings of all sizes.

Current Concepts Institute (CCI) is dedicated to delivering contemporary continuing medical education (CME) to health care professionals with the ultimate goal of improving the quality of the care delivered to the public. These CME activities are designed to change the clinical competence or professional performance of the learner and/or improve patient outcomes independent of commercial bias. CCI develops, manages and provides accreditation to CME activities whose teachers are recognized clinical, surgical and scientific thought-leaders and that present evidence-based information to address professional practice gaps.

The CCI team has been directly responsible for the planning, content creation, marketing, meeting management, and ACCME reporting for 60 successful Current Concepts in Joint Replacement® (CCJR®) meetings in addition to serving as consultants for global meetings organized by orthopaedic device manufacturers. CCI has evolved from a non-accredited entity to an ACCME-accredited provider and our experience provides valuable insight into implementing successful CME activities as efficiently as possible.